1) a controlled foreign entity is registered or otherwise organised in the targeted territory, or

3) an actual corporate tax of a controlled foreign entity calculated of the income of this controlled foreign entity according to the rules of corporate tax or similar tax applicable in that foreign state is lower than 50 per cent of an actual corporate tax which would have been calculated of the income of this controlled foreign entity according to the provisions of the Law on Corporate Income Tax. For the purposes of this item, no account shall be taken of the income that has been earned by a controlled foreign entity through a permanent establishment in another foreign state which is not taxed in a foreign state where a controlled foreign entity is registered or otherwise organised. For the purposes of this item, only the passive income of a controlled foreign entity is included in positive income.

2. The provisions of this Article shall not apply where a controlled foreign entity, which meets the conditions referred to in items 2 and 3 of paragraph 1 of this Article, has employees and uses the assets to secure an actual economic activity in the state where this controlled foreign entity is registered or otherwise organised.

3. For the purposes of this Article, the following shall be considered to be passive income:

1) interest and other income from financial assets;
2) royalties and any other income from intellectual property;

Non-taxable income, deductions permitted or deductions permitted of limited values that are related to earning of that income can be deducted in calculating positive income according to the provisions of the Article 11 of the Law on Corporate Income Tax. Amendments to a paragraph of the Article:

7. Losses incurred during a tax period by individuals engaged in individual activities specified in paragraph 5 of Article 8 of this Law may be carried forward to the following fiscal year according to the procedure stipulated in Article 18¹ of this Law. The sum of allowable deductions of other individuals engaging in individual activities cannot exceed the income from individual activities received during that tax period.

8. Expenses must be substantiated by documents bearing all the obligatory particulars of accounting documents required by the Law of the Republic of Lithuania on Accounting and other legal acts, unless the Government of the Republic of Lithuania or an institution authorised by it determines that specific particulars are not obligatory for respective documents.

9. Expenses in cases of purchasing goods and services from foreign entities and individuals may be substantiated by documents issued by foreign entities and individuals, if these documents allow identifying the contents of the economic operation.

This provision shall not apply when income from individual activities or a part thereof is received by the individual from a person connected to the individual by labour relations or corresponding relations. The individual who chooses to calculate taxable income from individual activities according to the procedure laid down in this paragraph shall not be obligated to provide documents substantiating the deducted amount.

13. The amount of bad debts incurred during a tax period shall be deducted from income recognised under the accrual accounting principle if that amount was included in the individual's income from individual activities. The portion of costs attributed to bad debts incurred during the tax period shall be deducted from income recognised under the cash accounting principle where the appearance of such debts was recorded in the accounting documents of income from individual activities. Where a debtor or another person later repays the bad debts deducted, the total amount of the debts repaid shall be attributed to income. Debts shall be considered as bad debts if the individual cannot recover them after a period of at least one year from including the amount of debt in the income from individual activities or from the recording of the appearance of such debts in the accounting documents of income from individual activities or if the debtor has died or has been pronounced dead or has been liquidated or has gone bankrupt. In all of the above cases, the individual must prove that the debts are bad and that efforts have been made to recover such debts. The procedure for providing proof of bad debts and of efforts made to recover them as well as the procedure for calculation of the amounts of such debts shall be established by the Government of the Republic of Lithuania or an institution authorised by it. The provisions of this paragraph shall not apply where the debtor and the creditor are related persons or have become related over the tax period following the tax period during which the debt was recognised as a bad debt and was included in allowable deductions in accordance with the procedure laid down in this paragraph.
